Master of Public Health and Graduate Certificate in Public Health Courses

Admission to Master of Public Health and Graduate Certificate in Public Health

The Westminster Master of Public Health (MPH) program provides a solid foundation for public health practice and focuses on developing the knowledge needed to be a competent public health professional. The program prepares students to promote and protect public health and safety through education, service, and the application of evidence-based science. The MPH program attracts individuals with a commitment to acquire knowledge that will help them advance to leadership positions. Students come from a variety of careers such as health departments, hospitals, integrated health delivery systems, HMOs, group practices, government agencies, and nongovernmental organizations. Students learn leadership and practical skills that help them apply their knowledge and expertise to situations that range from social issues to highly technical problems.

The program offers a MPH degree with a Graduate Certificate in Public Health (Cert.PH) that is taught in a format adapted to working professionals. The MPH program is accredited by the Council on Education for Public Health.

We prepare our students while embracing the core values of Westminster College: impassioned teaching and active learning, respect for diverse people and perspectives, collaboration and teamwork, personal and social responsibility, college-wide excellence, and high ethical standards. We also follow the standards set forth by the Council on Education for Public Health (CEPH) to assure excellence in public health education. This educational program prepares public health practitioners to meet the diverse challenges of public health locally, nationally, and globally.

The program is grounded in the belief that, to be most effective, public health practitioners should receive formal training in the core concepts of public health. The program covers the following core concepts: analysis and assessment, policy development and program planning, communication, cultural competency, community dimensions of practice, basic public health science, financial planning and management, and leadership and systems-thinking.

Vision

Inspired students committed to creating conditions under which people can be healthy.

Mission

To prepare future public health leaders with the skills required to address today's population health challenges through the provision of high-quality teaching and mentoring, scholarly activities, service, and community-based projects.

Program Outcomes

Graduates of the MPH program will be prepared to:

1. Assess, monitor, and review the health status of populations and their related determinants of health and illness.
2. Demonstrate the ability to utilize the proper statistical and epidemiologic tools to assess community needs and program outcomes.
3. Interpret quantitative and qualitative data.
4. Use methods and instruments for collecting valid and reliable quantitative and qualitative data.
5. Identify and prioritize the key dimensions of a public health problem by critically assessing public health literature—both quantitative and qualitative sources.
6. Describe the direct and indirect human, ecological, and safety effects of major environmental and occupational agents.
7. Determine approaches for assessing, preventing, and controlling environmental hazards that pose risks to human health and safety.
8. Identify the causes of social and behavioral factors that affect the health of individuals and populations.
9. Apply theoretical constructs of social and health behavior in planning community interventions.
10. Articulate the relationship between health care delivery and financing, public health systems, and public policy.
11. Apply the principles of program planning, development, budgeting, management, and evaluation in public health organizations and initiatives.
12. Function as collaborators on public health projects with the ability to assume leadership roles effectively.
13. Identify and apply ethical, moral, and legal principles in all aspects of public health practice.
14. Develop public health programs and strategies responsive to the diverse cultural values and traditions of the communities being served.
15. Apply evidence-based principles and the scientific knowledge base to develop evaluation methods and critically evaluate public health program outcomes.
16. Effectively communicate public health messages to a variety of audiences from professionals to the general public.
